JOSEPH BAER

DIES OF PNEUMONIA AFTER A BRIEF ILLNESS.

Paducahans Called to Funeral of Uncle—Infant Dies of Inanition.

Mr. Joseph Baer, 81 years old August 1, died this morning at 9:30 o'clock, of pneumonia at his residence 424 South Third street. Mr. Baer is survived by his wife and has no known living blood relatives.

Mr. Baer was born and reared in Germany and came to this country in 1840. He had been a resident of Paducah 18 years. He was in the hide, fur and wool business during his residence in this city. Mr. Baer was a faithful member of Temple Israel and a member of the B'nai B'rith. For 40 years he had been an invalid from rheumatism. He became ill with pneumonia last Monday.

The funeral will be held Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the residence on South Third street. The funeral services will be conducted by the Rev. Meyer Lovitch. The burial will be in the Jewish cemetery.

Jeffords Infant.

The two-week-old infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Jeffords, of South Fifth street, died yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock of inanition. The funeral was held this morning at 10 o'clock and the burial was at Oak Grove cemetery. Mr. Jeffords is a fireman at fire station No. 2.

Only Calloway and Lyon Counties Will Have Soldiers on Guard This Winter Unless Another Outbreak

Governor Willson Issues Order For Withdrawal of Detachment in Black Patch—The Reasons.

Hopkinsville, Ky., Nov. 27.—(Special.)—Orders are issued withdrawing all troops from western Kentucky excepting the two detachments at Murray and Eddyville. This relieves the troops at Benton, Hickman, Princeton, Cadiz, Marion and other points east of the river. In Lyon and Calloway counties the county judges and county attorneys have been trying to establish order and in Calloway the sheriff has been instrumental in fighting lawlessness. They need protection and assistance. In other places the county authorities are doing nothing and the people seem to be content to leave the whole business of maintaining the law to the state authorities. Governor Willson, it is known, has been intending to withdraw troops as soon as possible, and he does not feel that the state should do more than to protect lives and property. For the permanent reestablishment of law and order he holds each community responsible for itself.

In Marshall county there seems to be little further need of soldiers, as the law-abiding element seems to dominate.

Capt. Phil Thompson.

Harrodsburg, Ky., Nov. 27.—(Special.)—Capt. Phil Thompson, Sr., is dying. He is not expected to live through the day. He was one of the most noted characters in the state.

Mission Sunday.

The Tenth Street Christian church Sunday school will observe Home Mission day and have a splendid program next Sunday evening at the church. All the Sunday school and members of the church expect to be there and invite their friends to be present and enjoy the evening with them.

SHOCKING SCANDALS UNCOVERED IN PARIS AS RESULT OF STEINHEIL EXPOSURES

Paris, Nov. 27.—The arrest of Madame Steinheil following her confession that for months since the murder of her painter husband and Madame Japy, her stepmother, who were found strangled in the home of the artist May 31 last, her attempt to find the assassins, and innumerable fantastic clues furnished the police and newspapers were only a desperate farce to conceal the real author of the crime, whom she knew, affords Paris the biggest sensation it has had for years.

The excitement produced from time to time by the Humbert, Dreyfus and Syvet affairs, pale into insignificance by comparison, and the revelations which have crowded thick and fast during the last few days, pointing to the possible exposure of a national scandal, promise to attract world wide attention.

Minister of Justice Briand is reported already to have begun an inquiry into the case to determine the truth of the allegation that M. Lettett, examining magistrate, entertained relations with Mme. Steinheil which induced him to stifle the affair. The political opponents of the government, like Henri Rochefort, have been trying to make political capital of the affair by seeking to force an exposure of the scandal connected with the mysterious death of President Faure in 1899. Although hushed up at the time, it was common knowledge among those behind the scenes that Mme. Steinheil was with Faure at Elysee palace when Faure died. Some papers do not hesitate to print what they term the story of the liaison. According to those stories, Faure had met Mme. Steinheil in the Swiss Alps during the maneuvers the year previous to his death, and she was greatly enamored of him.

Acted Quaker at Funeral. A person who attended Faure's funeral described to members of the press how, after the ceremony at the cemetery, Mme. Steinheil fell on her knees at the grave and placed a bunch of violets on the coffin. Then, he said, sobbing she prostrated herself on the ground, passionately kissing Faure's portrait. Immediately after this, according to the same authority, Steinheil, who had been conspicuous at the friendship existing between Faure and his wife and who had accepted the Legion of Honor at the hands of President Faure, began proceedings for a divorce, but through the intervention of his family this suit was withdrawn. According

HERE'S A HOG.

Mr. J. B. Waltman, of rural route No. 2, about nine miles from the city, sold a 215 pound hog to Paducah butchers yesterday. The hog is just a common animal, but it had an interesting experience July 1 Mr. Waltman was stacking hay and the hog weighing 90 pounds strayed under the stack and could not get out. Mr. Waltman thought the hog had strayed away, but August 26, when he baled the hay, the hog was found alive and weighed 47 pounds. Since then the hog has gained weight steadily, and when sold weighed 215 pounds.

Shot White Man Dead.

Poplar Bluff, Mo., Nov. 27.—Magpie Fields, a negro, shot and instantly killed John Wright, a white farmer. She charges that Wright tried to criminally assault her 10-year-old daughter. Fields visited the woman and made insulting advances toward the girl, but was ordered away. Later he returned and seized the girl when the woman fired.

A PROCLAMATION.

The Civics department of the Woman's club has requested me to appoint Tuesday, the first day of December, a "cleaning day" for our city. From the point of view of health, as well as civic pride, this is a most important movement. All dead vines should be cut down and burned up with leaves and other unsightly rubbish. All officials who can be instrumental in carrying out this order will be directly spoken to, and I earnestly beg all the citizens to do their part in making this a day of beneficial results.

JAMES P. SMITH, Mayor.

PERJURY CHARGE AGAINST FARMER OF CALLOWAY CO.

B. M. Parks, a farmer of Calloway county, was arrested and brought to Paducah yesterday by Deputy Sheriff Bud Waterfield, of Murray, on a warrant issued by Magistrate Emery for false swearing. The charge grew out of a suit filed in the magistrate's court by Parks against Dan Holland for $25, claimed due on a horse trade. Holland denied the account, claiming he had paid the money to a doctor at Bolivar, Tenn., on Parks' order, the occasion being when Parks was hurt by a train or ever brought suit against the railroad for such injuries. Holland procured a copy of the suit and secured a warrant for perjury. Parks' father accompanied him here and went his bail. It is thought that Parks is not responsible.

Little Christina Mercer Dies of Burns She Received Sunday When She Fell Into Grate at Her Home

Child Slipped From Rocking Chair Into Fire and Inhaled Flames—She Suffered Excruciating Pain.

After lingering since Sunday most of the time under the influence of opiates to quiet her pain, little Christina Mercer, the 3-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clint Mercer, 709 South Tenth street, died this morning about 8:30 o'clock, as the result of burns received Sunday morning, when she slipped from a rocking chair into an open grate. She inhaled the flames. Her mother had gone across the street for a moment to answer a telephone call, leaving the child in the house. Little Christina seated herself in a rocking chair in front of the fire and was swinging herself back and forth, when the chair tilted further forward than she anticipated and she slid directly on to the coals. Her clothing ignited and when she felt the pain and saw the blaze, the child ran into the street, screaming for her mother. She breathed hard in her excitement and drew the flames into her lungs. A neighbor saw her and ran out and smothered the flames with a wet towel.

The child suffered excruciating pain and physicians were compelled to administer opiates until it could be determined for certain whether she had inhaled the fire. There was no hope for her life.

The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the residence. The funeral services will be conducted by the Rev. William Bouquin, pastor of the German Evangelical church. The burial will be at Oak Grove cemetery.

ONE MARRIAGE IN EVERY TWELVE IS IN THIS COUNTRY

Washington, Nov. 27.—The bureau of census has just completed a compilation of the statistics of marriage and divorce covering a period of 20 years from 1887 to 1906, inclusive.

The total number of marriages recorded during the 20 years from 1887 to 1906, inclusive, was 12,832,044.

The marriage rate in the United States in the year 1906 was 93 per 1,000 population. Based upon the adult unmarried (single, widowed or divorced) population, the rate becomes 324 per 10,000.

The total number of divorces reported for the 20 years, 1887 to 1906 inclusive, was 945,625. A divorce rate of 200 per 100,000 married population is equivalent to 2 per 1,000 married population. Assuming that 1,000 married people represent 500 married couples, it follows that in each year 4 married couples out of every 1,000 secure a divorce.

This does not mean that only 4 marriage out of 1,000 are terminated by divorce. The rate, it will be noted is an annual rate, continuously operative, and comes far short of measuring the probability of ultimate divorce. The available data indicate, however, that not less than 1 marriage in 12 is ultimately terminated by divorce.

SERIOUS CHARGE IS MADE AGAINST YOUTH OF COUNTY

Rodney Clark Accused of Giving Whisky to John Davis, Who Died.

Child Just Seven Years Old Drank Pint.

CLARK DENIES HE IS GUILTY

Rodman Clark, the 20-year-old son of Wylie Clark, a farmer of near Lone Oak, is in the county jail on a charge of murder, having been arrested yesterday on a warrant procured by Ike Davis, a farmer of near Milan, who charges that Clark gave his seven-year-old son enough whisky Sunday afternoon to cause his death.

According to statements made to Magistrate F. F. Gholson, who issued the warrant, Clark and the Davis boy left the Davis home Sunday morning to go to a neighbor's house, and it was not noticed that Clark was intoxicated at the time. When the child did not return in the afternoon a search was begun and in a lane about half a mile from the Davis home Clark was found working with the child trying to revive him from a comatose state. The child was carried home and medical aid summoned, but death came Monday before the child regained consciousness. Physicians pronounced death due to alcohol.

Clark is said to have told conflicting stories to members of the Davis family in an attempt to explain how the child got the whisky, and after the burial Tuesday a warrant was procured and placed in the hands of a constable, but Clark had left the neighborhood. The warrant was then sent to Sheriff Ogilvie and turned over to Deputies Gus Rogers and Clarence Ogilvie, who learned that Clark was at the home of his father near Lone Oak. When the officers went to the Clark home they asked permission from a daughter, who was in the yard, to hunt on the farm. While talking to the girl they asked where the boys were, and were directed to where the boys were at work.

The officers took the precaution to separate and go upon them from different directions, and as Rogers neared the place where they were at work one of the boys saw him and gave a warning whistle which resulted in the one that was wanted attempting to escape by running. Officer Rogers fired two shots, which caused Clark to run all the faster, and he was in a fair way to escape when he ran into the arms of Deputy Ogilvie.

Magistrate Gholson was notified by telephone of the arrest and ordered the prisoner to the county jail until arrangements for a preliminary hearing could be made with the county attorney.

Rodman Clark when arrested denied giving the child the whisky but claims that he drank several drinks and fell asleep himself and that while he was lying on the ground the child got hold of the bottle and drank some of the whisky. When he awoke the child was lying by his side unconscious. He endeavored to revive him with cold water, but failed and was about to summon help when members of the Davis family found him with the child.

Poles Threaten Trouble

Perth Amboy, N. J., Nov. 27.—Serious trouble is feared at the National Fireproofing plant, where strikers are threatening another attack. It is reported one man was killed and 20 wounded in fighting last night. Strikers are mostly Poles and Hungarians. They are drinking heavily and in a vicious mood. They threaten bloodshed if strike-breakers are brought. Troops are still guarding. Men claimed the factory promised better wages if Taft was elected and demand the increase.

After supper the family left, and the burglar made his arrangements. A chair was placed against the front door and when it was opened the negro jumped out of a window. Later he returned, but before a well planned trap succeeded in catching him the negro escaped.

BURFORD PROVED HE HAD MONEY OF HIS OWN THAT DAY

The examining trial of Ed Burford, a young man of the county, on the charge of robbing J. F. Crafton, of $140 at a Kentucky avenue boarding house Tuesday morning, developed a peculiar chain of circumstances, although many people who heard the testimony believe him innocent.

Crafton testified that the money was in his hip pocket while he and Burford, who roomed with him, were dressing next morning, that after he went into another room a few minutes later he missed the money. Will Baker, a bartender at Rodfus' saloon, testified that Burford went into his place early Tuesday morning with a pocketbook exactly like that described by Crafton, which contained a large roll of bills. Both Crafton and Baker testified that the pocketbook Burford had when arrested was not the one stolen.

Burford told a straightforward story and was able to show that he secured $35 from the Bandana bank before he came to Paducah. He denied taking any money from Crafton and explained his movements minutely from the time he reached the city until he was arrested. He said that the money he had when arrested was the same he drew from the Bandana bank. Judge Cross, after hearing the evidence, held the defendant to the grand jury, fixing the bail at $300, which he has not yet been able to give.

People who have known Burford say he is an honest, hard working farmer, and doubt his guilt.

Other Cases.

Other cases were breach of ordinance, Charles Joseph, $10; Jim Sowers, $5. Breach of peace, Sis Parker, $50; Red White, continued to November 28. Malicious cutting, Hattie Mays, held to grand jury.

BOUTELL DENIES THAT HEARING ON TARIFF IS OVER

Washington, Nov. 27.—Replying to criticisms, Congressman Boutell denied that the tariff investigation is thorough. He pointed out that the examination of witnesses isn't the only investigation. Various government agents are seeking information in this country and abroad. The bureau of manufactures is conducting this inquiry and hundreds of prosperous manufacturers, who won't be witnesses, are invited to send information by mail. Boutell insists that there is the most thorough investigation of the tariff question ever attempted.

THREE FIRES

IN ONE BLOCK ON BROADWAY LATE YESTERDAY.

The Damage Done at Ullman's, Roberts' and McPherson's Stores During the Evening.

Three fires in the short space of twelve hours kept the firemen busy celebrating Thanksgiving Day at the nozzle. Stranger still was the fact that the three fires were in the same block, all on Broadway. First the department was called to J. R. Roberts, 325 Broadway, at 12:10 to extinguish a small fire. At 7:05 o'clock a small fire in McPherson's drug store, 335 Broadway, was extinguished. About 10 o'clock S. R. Ullman's store, 317 Broadway, was discovered on fire with the heaviest loss, about $5,000. Fire companies Nos. 1 and 3 answered the three alarms.

The fire in the Ullman store started on the second floor near the front, and was seen by pedestrians, who ran to the Central station. The firemen responded and as the blaze had a good headway a stream of water was put on. The loss from the fire was not serious, but the water damage to the stock on the first floor will make the loss. Mr. Ullman said his stock was valued at $10,000 with $6,000 insurance on the stock and $4,000 on the fixtures. The loss probably will amount to about $5,000. It is thought that the fire originated from an electric wire. It was seen where a hole was burned through the tables. At first the origin of the fire was attributed to the mechanism of the electric sign, but W. J. McPherson, city electrical inspector, examined the sign and found it in good order. The Eye See Jewelry company, 315 Broadway, and Noah's Ark, 319 Broadway, were damaged slightly by water.

The second fire was in McPherson's drug store. A negro was filling a reservoir of a gasoline lighting apparatus and a lighted match caused a slight explosion. The loss was trivial.

The first fire at the store of J. R. Roberts, started in a pile of blankets near the rear of the store. The firemen went through the smoke and with chemicals extinguished the fire with about $330 loss.

KETCHELL WINS BACK LAURELS

Knocked Out Billy Papke in Eleventh Round.

Almost as Strong at End as Beginning—The Fight By Rounds.

HE WAS CLEARLY MASTER.

San Francisco, Nov. 27.—Stanley Ketchell, of Grand Rapids, Mich., regained the middleweight championship of the world and reversed his defeat of last September when he sent Billy Papke, the Illinois "Thunderbolt" crashing to the floor before a well directed blow that caught his opponent flush upon the chin.

Ketchell Was Master.

The end came in the eleventh, prior to which Ketchell showed clearly that he was master of his opponent at any kind of fighting. Round by round Ketchell forced his opponent and when opportunity offered planted a right to the head or body, generally escaping without damaging returns. Belying his appearance, and forcing the fight throughout every minute, Ketchell was stronger up to the moment of the knockout blow than was his opponent.

First Round.

They went right together. Papke landing with a straight left to the face. Close fighting followed, Papke backing against the ropes, landing a short arm right and left to the face. Ketchell then went after his man and throughout the remainder of the round hammered Papke, finally driving him to the ropes and forcing him to cover.

Second, Third, Fourth.

The second was brief, Papke doing some effective work and at end had a shade the better.

The third was an evener, neither having much advantage, but both giving some hard blows.

Fourth—Ketchell opened with a terrific right to the jaw, following it with a hard left to the same place, forcing Papke to clinch. Papke did little in this round, the close being clearly in Ketchell's favor.

Fifth Round.

Ketchell crossed a ponderous right to the jaw and both men fell clear through the ropes, but were helped back to the arena and went at it exchanging blows that did little damage.

Sixth.

Ketchell landed two vicious lefts to the face and the blood started to flow from that organ. Papke got in a few hard ones. Both were bleeding from the nose when they broke. The round ended with a strong lead for Ketchell.

Seventh, Eighth, Ninth, Tenth.

In the seventh and eighth Ketchell did all the punishing and the rounds ended in his favor, Papke bleeding freely.

Ninth—Ketchell shot a left to the stomach and at close range swung two lefts to the head. Papke fought back desperately, but Ketchell forced him against the ropes and landed a right and left to the body. Papke was groggy at the close.

The tenth was almost a repetition of the ninth except that Papke did get in three hard blows.

Eleventh.

There were several fruitless rallies and then Ketchell hooked a hard left to the stomach following it with a right and left to the same place. Ketchell floored Papke with a fearful left to the jaw and Papke took the count in five. When Papke arose Ketchell again floored his man with a storm of rights and lefts to the jaw and body. Papke tried to get up, but was down one second too long and was counted out.

News of Theatres

"Dandle Dixie Minstrels."

"The Dandy Dixie Minstrels" and the "Cotton Pickers" band of 30 singers, dancers, musicians and comedians will be the attraction at the Kentucky on Thursday, December 3. Nothing so stupendous in minstrelsy has ever before been attempted by any other organization of colored performers. Every act of the olio is a novelty, while the minstrel first part in the "Royal Palm Grotto" and the funny farce, "The Possunville Speeders" were the features of the performance given during the entire summer season at the Wistaria Grove, on the New York theater roof garden. In addition to the big olio with specialties by Billy Kersands, James Crosby, Campbell and Meaux, Monroe Taber, Montrose Douglass, Prince, the hoop marvel, there will be a singing novelty called the "Dixie College Rangers," in which the singing forces of the company will render as exquisite vocal arrangement.

Getting Advice.

"Why do you want young men in your employment? Are you afraid the older men will be self-confident and want to give advice?"

"No," answered Mr. Dustin Stax, "we want all the advice we can get. And if you want advice bubbling forth freely and unrestrained, you want to get a man who hasn't had too much experience."

FIRST TO WEAR OUT WITH AGE

Tells Sun Readers What to Do When Kidneys Weaken.

Take care of backache. A great many cases of kidney complaint are reported about here; also bladder trouble and rheumatism.

An authority once stated that pain in the back, loins or region of the kidneys is the danger signal nature hangs out to notify the sufferer that there is something wrong with the kidneys, which should receive immediate attention. Only vegetable treatment should be administered and absolutely no strongly alcoholic medicines, which are harmful to the kidneys and bladder.

The following prescription, while simple, harmless and inexpensive, is known and recognized as a sovereign remedy for kidney complaint. The ingredients can be obtained at any good prescription pharmacy and anyone can mix them: Compound Ketchell, one ounce; Fluid Extract Ketchell, one-half ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Shake well in a bottle and take a teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime.

This preparation is said to restore the natural function of the kidneys, so they will stand and strain the poisonous waste matter, uric acid, etc., from the blood, purifying it and relieving rheumatism. Backache will be relieved, the urine will be neutralized and clearer and no longer a cause of irritation, thereby overcoming such symptoms as weak bladder, painful, frequent and other urinary difficulties.

This is worth trying and may prove just what the people here need.

Uncle Sam and Faust Spaghetti.

The United States agricultural department declares Spaghetti to be a highly nutritious food—rich in gluten and other strength-producing elements. These qualities are found at their best in Faust Spaghetti, a food that has no equal anywhere as regards tastiness, nutriment, and low price—a price which, when compared to that of meat and other food, seems insignificant in view of the great food value.

Faust Brand Spaghetti is a strictly American food. American grown and American made. Put up in clean packages, reaching you fresh and dainty, ready for immediate cooking. Faust Spaghetti always delights because its adaptability prevents its becoming tiresome. To better understand its all-round cooking usefulness, get a five or ten cent package from almost any grocer, and write for book of Faust Spaghetti recipes—free on request.

CHRISTMAS TRADE IS CHANGING

The People Now Use Better Shopping Judgment.

No Longer Content With Goods That Look Handsome; But Must Have Fine Values as Well.

THE PRICES MUST BE LOW.

Only a few years ago Germany, Switzerland and France made about ninety per cent of all the strictly made Christmas things that were sold in the United States. Then England passed a law that all German wares coming into that country, or into any of her possessions, must be stamped "Made in Germany." Thus did England ring the death knell on foreign made Christmas wares, for as long as Germany could make her goods and sell them without stamping, she could build cheap and sell cheap, and no one would be the wiser as to where the cheaply thrown together things came from.

But, with the creation and enforcement of England's stamp act, matters assumed a different complexion in Great Britain, as well as in the United States, for, although there was no law here compelling her to do so, Germany also stamped the goods shipped to us "Made in Germany," as well as those exported to England. Then, when a person bought an article that did not prove to be all it promised, and found "Made in Germany" plainly stamped on the bottom, that person was quite sure to fight shy of "Made in Germany" goods thereafter.

The trade in foreign made Christmas wares then steadily fell off, a condition the American manufacturers were not slow to perceive, and, perceiving, quick to take advantage of by fairly flooding our home markets with a high grade of well made and very attractive goods that proved to be all the purchaser expected, and more.

"Yes," said Mr. J. H. Rudy, head of the local firm of Rudy & Sons, where they are just starting their active Christmas selling campaign, "we sell more American made wares now by some seventy-five or eighty per cent than we ever did before. In fact, the call in Paducah for holiday merchandise is practically centered on staple American made lines, almost to the total exclusion of foreign novelties."

"People today are becoming very wise about spending their Christmas money; they must have things that are thoroughly well made, and that serve a useful purpose. Four or five years ago it was the custom to put a lot of cheap metal and tinseled boxes and things of that sort, on sale at Christmas time, and the people bought them like the proverbial hot cakes."

"But that won't do now, all metal goods must bear the 'Sterling' mark, while fully seventy-five per cent of our Christmas trade is on such highly useful things as handkerchiefs, neckwear, fur garments, waists, dress patterns, table ware, and that class of merchandise."

"The people will not now pay the high holiday prices they would years ago, either. Our entire holiday season stock has to be marked just as low as the goods are sold for at any other time; in fact, it is one of the rules of this store that our profit ratio shall, if anything, be less, rather than more, during December, and, by the way, we believe that our regular margin of profit is as small, if not smaller, than that of any other retail establishment in this section of Kentucky."

"Speaking of low prices during December, take our Fur stock for instance, we are today offering new winter fur pieces that cannot be purchased, even at wholesale, for the figures we name. Why is it? You ask; well, we placed our orders for furs very early, and, unlike some merchants, we are not taking advantage of the recent rise in wholesale prices, it being the custom of this store to turn over to our customers all the advantages we reap in buying."

"So it goes in all the departments

Banderine

GROWS HAIR and we can

PROVE IT!

A lady from Minnesota writes: "As a result of using Banderine, my hair is close to five feet in length."

Beautiful Hair at Small Cost

HAIR troubles, like many other diseases, have been wrongly diagnosed and altogether misunderstood. The hair itself is not the thing to be treated, for the reason that it is simply a product of the scalp and wholly dependent upon its action. The scalp is the very soil in which the hair is produced, nurtured and grown, and it alone should receive the attention if results are to be expected. I would do no earthly good to treat the stem of a plant with a view of making it grow and become more beautiful—the soil in which the plant grows must be attended to. Therefore, the scalp in which the hair grows must receive the attention if you are to expect it to grow and become more beautiful.

Loss of hair is caused by the scalp drying up, losing its supply of moisture or nutriment, when dandruff occurs the scalp has simply lost all its nourishment, leaving nothing for the hair to feed upon (a plant or even a tree would die under similar conditions). The natural thing to do in either case, is to feed and replenish the soil or scalp as the case may be, and your crop will grow and multiply as nature intended it should.

Knowlton's Banderine has a most wonderful effect upon the hair glands and tissues of the scalp. It is the only remedy for the hair ever discovered that is similar to the natural hair oils or liquids of the scalp.

It penetrates the pores quickly and the hair soon shows the effects of its wonderfully exhilarating and life-producing qualities.

One 25-cent bottle is enough to convince you of its great worth as a hair growing and hair beautifying remedy—try it and see for yourself.

NOW at all druggists in three sizes, 25c, 50c and $1.00 per bottle.

FREE To show how quickly Banderine acts we will send a large sample free by return mail to anyone who sends this free coupon to the

of our entire store, the people demand big values during the Christmas shopping season, and we should not feel that we were doing our duty by the public unless we supplied them, and that, too, in abundance and variety sufficient to please everybody."

TO PARENTS;—BEFORE IT HAPPENS.

Before it happens, warn the boy or girl of the accident on the streets.

You would punish a child who insisted upon climbing up to walk along the ridge-pole of the roof.

It is about as dangerous for them to "steal rides" on wagons or electric cars. Put an end to this danger today. Find out whether YOUR child is "stealing rides." You may not know it and he may be thrown under the wheels of a wagon or a car in the next twenty-four hours.

ALSO tell him the folly of jumping on and off cars when they are in motion. Tell him to WAIT FOR A FULL STOP.

DO THIS YOURSELF AS AN EXAMPLE TO HIM, TO YOUR WIFE, TO YOUR NEIGHBOR.

CHESS, CHECKER AND WHIST CLUB DEFEATS P. A. C.

Fast Work in First Five Minutes of Play Wins the Local Football Contest.

Fast work in the first five minutes of play and taking advantage of the opponent's fumbling won the game for the Chess, Checker and Whist eleven yesterday afternoon. The Chess players bewildered the players of the Athletic club and before the P. A. C. boys came down to earth touchdowns had been made to make the score 17. In the second half a safety was made, while R. Bower made a pretty drop kick and the final score was 19 to 4.

A gypsy, upon release from jail, met a friend.

"I found a horse."

Accidents on the Local Gridiron.

More injuries resulted on the Paducah gridiron this season than ever before. No attempt has been made to keep record of the players merely wounded or only slightly hurt, but nearly a dozen players or enough players to compose a team were on the crippled list. One reason assigned for the injuries is that there are three teams this year, and more games were played on the local field.

The most serious injury of the season was the fracture of both bones in the right leg of A. D. Meacham, right guard on the McLean college of Hopkinsville. Then Gladstone Burns, quarterback on the P. A. C. eleven, fractured his jawbone in practice, and in a game several days later had his shoulder dislocated. R. Bower, a halfback on the same team, dislocated his right shoulder and was unable to play for several weeks.

Irvin, a Murray player, fractured two ribs in a game with the P. A. C.

In a practice scrimmage early in the season Sights, of the C. C. & W. squad, dislocated a shoulder and was unable to play for several weeks.

Daley, who plays center on the same team, had a rib fractured and bruised and sprains kept him out of the game until yesterday. Barby, an end, sprained an ankle in practice, but was able to play part of the game yesterday. Reeder, an end for the

P. A. C., sprained his wrist in practice, but was able to play in games. Ogilvie, a high school player, sprained an ankle and he was on crutches several days, and had to remain on the side lines for the remainder of the season. Scott, another high school player, was kept out of a game owing to bruises and sprains. Cooley, an end on the team of the Metropolis high school, sprained an ankle in one of the first games and he had to be carried off the field.

Many other aspirants for eleven received minor injuries that kept them out of practice for several days, and a number of players had fingers out of place, and such minor injuries that never interfered with playing materially.

Oran Bell, left end on the P. A. C. team, sprained his left ankle yesterday afternoon while tackling a player and was unable to finish the game.

Bell was unable to be out today.

Daily Thought.

The tears of a penitent are the wine of angels.—St. Bernard.

The quails must have thought the night riders had taken the country yesterday.

Why couldn't each town sweep and just the Ohio river in front of its own levee during the dry spell?

Ministers in the Joplin, Mo., district prayed at their Thanksgiving services yesterday for an increase in the tariff on zinc. If that custom is generally accepted over the country, we shall be compelled to consider Senator Beveridge's suggestion to submit the schedules to a disinterested commission, as superfluous.

Perhaps the best Christmas gift we could give the clerks on Broadway would be an early shopping campaign. They would rather be kept busy from now until Christmas, than to have you all rush in at once and keep them going on their feet without their meals and half their sleep, being unable to more than half attend to any customer, with all the customers fretful and excited.

HUMAN LIFE.

The Graves county grand jury adjourned after returning five indictments for murder. There was no question in these cases of hot blood, or accident, although there will be some claim to self-defense. It will be interesting to observe how the five defendants are punished for their offenses.

Human life should be a very sacred thing. Killing another in hot blood is an admission that the animal predominates in our natures. Any beast will kill, if attacked. Cowardice itself will drive a cornered animal to strike back recklessly; and when that cowardly animal, not content with the weapons with which nature endowed it, arms itself with an instrument, which a more intelligent specimen of the same species invented, we suspect that it will tempt its adversary to corner it.

Our conception of a man, in whom the higher attributes of humanity predominate over the mere brute, is one who would rather be killed than kill. It takes more courage to accept death than it does to kill another in protecting ourselves. When the law established the plea of self-defense it considered the brute, whom it wished to restrain. It was the legal skill of the hired advocate that fashioned self-defense to conform to certain conventional circumstances not difficult to arrange, and the man, who will shoot another not in self-defense, will lie to get out of it.

There is something wrong in the moral atmosphere in which children are brought up to the idea that it is right to take human life under certain conditions. A man is justified in taking human life only when he is executing the law, as a public executioner. The law excuses him some times when he does it by accident or in self-defense; but the slayer has a higher law to which he must answer, and a community has a higher law to which it must answer when it permits its children to grow up with the idea that when a man does a certain thing to him or says a certain thing to them, they have a perfect right to take life. All this bloodshed and sorrow and fear and loss or wealth and lack of development are attributable to the lamentable fact that a child grows up, believing that he may constitute himself judge, jury and sheriff, pass upon the guilt, fix the punishment and execute the sentence against a fellow being, and if he makes a technical mistake, fall back on the excuse of hot blood and brute passion. A man, whose brute passion overmasters him at the cost of a fellow man's life, ought to be put out of the way for the safety of the community.

We need no reform in our laws, and not so much the enforcement of them, as a reform in our own ways of thinking.

IMPROVEMENTS.

Sidewalks should be improved; but attention should not be limited to compelling people to tear up brick sidewalks, good or bad, and lay concrete sidewalks. Property owners should be compelled to repair their defective brick sidewalks. A sidewalk is designed to protect people from accidents, as well as to keep their feet dry; but if a sidewalk actually adds to the danger of a pedestrian instead of obviating it, the person responsible for it should repair it. As for many more streets paved until this inherited floating debt is cancelled, Mechanicsburg has a new bridge, the west end has a much needed fire station, provisions are made for the care of poor people suffering from contagious diseases, and provisions are made for sprinkling and preserving the streets we already have. Let the people, who talk about paving more streets this year, suggest the means.

GRAFT IN THE STATE.

One by one facts of mismanagement, graft and theft under past administrations leak out at Frankfort. First it was discovered that an annual deficit of over $200,000 was the customary thing; next it was learned that Auditor Hager's balance was made up by withholding warrants of teachers and small creditors until the books were checked over to the incoming administration. Now it is discovered that the chief clerk in Hager's office had stolen thousands of dollars under his nose. What makes it appear worse Judge Roost states systematically from the record that Hager was elected. Hager passed through his term without, as far as the public knows, finding it out. The stealing continued under Hager and in less than a year Auditor James has unearthed the crime. It was a good thing Kentucky changed hands.

CURRENT EVENTS.

Whistler's Student Days.

The early scenes in "Tribby" have shown us the infamous squallor of the student life in Paris, when Whistler studied the studio that Gleyre carried on in succession to Delacroix. It was the bohemian, barely modernized, of Marguerite's novel and the shifts to which these raw recruits in art descended furnished Whistler for life with some of his raciest stories. Once when an American friend unearthed him, Whistler was living on the proceeds of a wardrobe. One hot day he pawned his coat for an iced drink. Invited once to the American embassy, he had to borrow Poynter's dress suit. But the best story of these troublesome days arises from the eternal copying in the Louvre, either on commission or on "spec," which kept them alive between remittances. Whistler's chum, Ernest Delanoy, had done a gorgeous replica of Veronese's "Marriage Feast at Cana" that took, when framed, the pair of them to carry it. They tried it on every dealer up and down both sides of the Seine, until the first price of 500 francs had dropped with several thuds to a 100, then 20, then 10, then 5. Suddenly the dignity of art asserted itself.

On the Pont des Arts they lifted the huge canvas. "Un," they said with a great swing. "Deux, trois, v'lan!" and over it went into the water with a splash. Sergeants de ville came running, omnibuses stopped, and boats pushed out on the river. Altogether it was an immense success, and they went home enchanted.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Sophy of Kravonia

by ANTHONY HOPE

Author of "The Prisoner of Zenda"

Sophy tore the envelope right across its breadth and shook out the flimsy paper within. It was folded in four. She did not trouble to open it. Lady Meg was a woman of her word, and here was the hundred pound note of the Bank of England—"Upon which you'll go, and no reasons given!" With a bitter smile she noticed that the note was soiled, the foldings old, the edges black where they were exposed. She had no doubt that all these years Lady Meg had carried it about, so as to be ready for the literal fulfillment of her bond.

"Upon which," said Sophy, "I go." The bitter smile lasted perhaps a minute more, then the girl flung herself into a chair in a fit of tears as bitter. She had served—or failed to serve—Lady Meg's mad purpose, and she was dung aside. Very likely she had grown hateful—she, the witness of insane whims now past and out of fashion. The dismissal might not be unnatural; but, for all their bargain, the manner was inhuman. They had lived and eaten and drunk together for so long. Had there been no touch of affection, no softening of the heart? It seemed not—it seemed not. Sophy wept and wondered. "Oh, what I had never left you, Julia!" she cried in her letter, and no doubt cried now, for Julia had given her a friend's love. If Lady Meg by—ven her only what one spares for a dog—a kind word before he is banished, a friendly lament at parting!

Suddenly through the window came a boy's shrill voice, "Vive la guerre!" Sophy sprang to her feet, caught up the dirty note and thrust it inside her glove. Without delay, seeming without hesitation, she left the house, passed swiftly along the street and made for the Pont Royal. She was bound for the other bank and for the Boulevard des Italiens, where Casimir de Savres had his lodging.

The stream of traffic set with her. She heeded it not. The streets were full of excited groups, but there was no great tumult yet. Men were eagerly reading the latest editions of the papers. Sophy pushed on till she reached Casimir's house. She was known there. Her coming caused surprise to the concierge. It was not the proper thing, but he made no difficulty. He showed her to Casimir's sitting room, but of Casimir he could give no information save that he presumed he would return to sleep. "I must wait—I must see him," she said, and, as the man left her, she went to the window, flung it wide open and stood there, looking down into the great street.

The lights blazed now. Every seat at every cafe was full. The newspapers did a great trade. A wave of infinite talk, infinite chatter, infinite laughter rose to her ears. A loud voiced fellow was selling pictures of the king of Persia, as he looks now, and as he will look! The second sheet never failed of a great success. Bands of lads came by with flags and warlike shouts. Some cheered them, more laughed and chaffed. One broad faced old man she distinguished in the cafe opposite. He looked grim and sulky and kept arguing to his neighbor, wagging a fat forefinger at him repeatedly. The neighbor shrugged bored shoulders. After all, he had not made the war—it was the emperor and those gentlemen at St. Cloud! As she watched the stir grew greater, the bands of marching students more frequent and noisy. "A Berlin!" they cried now, amid the same mixture of applause and tolerant amusement. A party of girls paraded down the middle of the street, singing "Palmes militaires!" The applause grew to thunder as they went by, and the laughter broke into one great crackle when the heroines had passed.

She turned away with a start, consciousness of a presence in the room. Casimir came quick, ly across to her, throwing his helmet on the table as he passed. He took her hands. "I know, Lady Meg wrote to me," he said. "And you are here!"

"I have no other home now," she said. With a light of joy in his eyes he kissed her lips. "I come to you only when I'm in trouble!" she said softly.

What Shall We Have for Pie?

Thousands of housewives settle this question daily by making lemon, chocolate or coconut-custard pies, which have become extremely popular since "OUR-PIE" Preparation has come into general use everywhere. If "OUR-PIE" does not please you the first time, try it again after reading carefully directions on package. The more you use the goods the better you will like them. 15 cents for a 2-pie package from any grocer.

"It is well," he answered and drew her with him back to the window. Together they stood, looking down. "It is war, then?" she asked. "Without doubt it's war—without doubt," he answered gravely. "And beyond that no man knows anything." "And you?" she asked. He took her hands again, both of hers in his. "My lady of the red star!" he murmured softly.

"And you?" "You wouldn't have it otherwise?" "Heaven forbid! God go with you, as my heart goes! When do you go?" "I take the road in an hour for Strassburg. We are to be of MacMahon's corps."

"In an hour?" "Yes." "Your preparations—are they made?" "Yes." "And you are free?" "Yes."

"I have an hour now—and all the campaign," said he. He answered as to a woman of his own stock: "I have an hour now—and all the campaign," said he.

Points of Likeness in the Presidents.

In the election of William Howard Taft comes into the range of public interest a reminder of some strange coincidences in presidents.

Who, having been intimately associated with the president-elect, does not bear a vivid recollection of those kindly blue eyes, beaming with good nature and merriment? Few, indeed, and thus arises the reminder of one of the most curious things that ever interlarded the fortunes of our presidents, for "Statistics and Economy," a government publication of 1906, states that every president, with the exception of William Henry Harrison, had blue eyes. Of course, that does not mean to infer that the man with the brown eye is to take alarm, but, better yet, it is time for some one with the unfathomable brown orb to get busy.

John Adams was eight years older than his successor, Thomas Jefferson, who was eight years older than James Madison, who was eight years older than James Monroe, and he eight years older than John Quincy Adams. George Washington ended his presidential term in the sixtieth year of his age. John Adams, Thomas Jefferson, James Madison and James Monroe likewise concluded their terms in the presidential chair in their sixty-sixth year.

Thomas Jefferson, the father of the declaration of independence, died on the fiftieth anniversary of that immortal proclamation, his predecessor, by a strange fatality, passing away on the same day, within a few minutes of the succeeding president. James Monroe also died on the anniversary of the declaration, his death occurring on July 4, 1831.

Amidst the vicissitudes it may be said that eight of those who have served their country in the shadow of the great chair have succeeded to the presidential office either through succession by the death of the incumbent or by election.

Inauguration day, therefore, will see the seating in the presidency and vice presidency of two men strangely linked with the fortunes of their predecessors. This day, March 4, calls to mind the few exceptions in the inaugural date. George Washington took his seat on April 30 for the first time, but the second term was ushered in on March 4. Thence to the second term of James Monroe the date remained unchanged, but the beginning of that administration is dated March 5, and thenceforth the date remained March 4, with the following exceptions: John Tyler, April 6; Zachary Taylor, March 5; Millard Fillmore, July 10; Andrew Johnson, April 15; Rutherford Hayes, March 5; Chester Arthur, September 30; and Theodore Roosevelt, first term, September 14.

The nation has been ruled by four Jameses, three Johns, three Williams inclusive of the president-elect, and two Andrews, but only one Theodore.—Washington Star.

MOTHER'S FRIEND

THE CENTURY PLANT.

Is Many Years Old Before It Blooms—Blossoms Once, Then Dies.

The century plant, so named because of the popular idea that it blooms but once in a hundred years, in one sense makes good its name, for it blooms only once, then dies. In the genial climate of southern California it reaches maturity and blooms in fifteen or twenty years, while in colder climates the period may range from forty to fifty years. There are many species of the agave family, native to northern Mexico, where it is called the maguey. The plant furnishes "pulque," the national drink of Mexico.

At the time of blooming the plant throws up a single stalk of rapid growth to the height of twelve to twenty feet, from which the tassel-like flowers sprout forth. This great flower stalk draws all the sap and vigor from the body of the plant, which soon withers and dies. At the base of the thick green leaves are found little suckers, each with a root, which when planted at once begin to grow. The end and edge of the leaves are well armed with stiff, sharp spines, the prick of which is very painful. This is nature's way of protecting the plant from the ravages of rabbits and other desert rodents.—October Technical World Magazine.

Each of the chief organs of the body is a link in the Chain of Life. A chain is no stronger than its weakest link, the body no stronger than its weakest organ. If there is weakness of stomach, liver or lungs, there is a weak link in the chain of life which may snap at any time. Often this so-called "weakness" is caused by lack of nutrition, the result of weakness or disease of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. Diseases and weaknesses of the stomach and its allied organs are cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. When the weak or diseased stomach is cured, diseases of other organs which seem remote from the stomach but which have their origin in a diseased condition of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, are cured also.

The strong man has a strong stomach. Take the above recommended "Discovery" and you may have a strong stomach and a strong body.

GIVEN AWAY.—Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, new revised Edition, is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Send 21 one-cent stamps for the book in paper covers, or 31 stamps for the cloth-bound volume. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

THE BUSIEST OF ALL GRAFTERS

Are Check Workers, Says Veteran Detective.

Farmer Signs Wedding Certificate, Woman Avails Herself of Autograph Mania.

THE UNIQUE METHODS USED.

The check workers, said a veteran detective, "are the busiest of all the 'grafters' and the hardest to keep track of. They are at it the whole year around and cause the police a lot of bother because they vary their methods so much. Nearly all other classes of criminals have certain little peculiarities about their work by which they become known, but these fellows get up a new scheme every day."

"Some of them are really men of genius, who could make a good living with their brains and tongues in almost any other line. If they only cared to do so. They all have degenerate tendencies, however, which drive them to the commission of crime. The most of them would not reform if they could."

"The most interesting of this class, perhaps, are not really 'check workers' at all. I allude to the men who make it their business to get genuine signatures to bona fide checks unknown to the signers."

"They are the modern development of the now almost extinct class of swindlers who used to drive through the country getting responsible farmers to sign machinery contracts, lightning rod agreements, or anything in fact, which might be torn in two and become a promissory note which could be negotiated at a bank. Now and then a modification of this old game still crops up in the backwoods districts, and in spots of the fact that every farmer nowadays takes a paper of some kind in which these frauds are exposed, victims are always found to illustrate the 'grafters' axiom that a new sucker is born every minute."

How a Farmer Was Worked.
"The modern idea is different. Not long since a new game was sprung with ingenuity enough in it to have been born of the devil."

"The chief actor in the little financial comedy drove up to the house of a prosperous farmer. He was dressed in a suit of sober black, and represented himself to be a circuit riding minister of the gospel. He requested shelter for the night, and was hospitably received. He proved a good talker, and the two sat up until bedtime engaged in pleasant conversation. Just about retiring time a couple hurriedly drove up and asked the farmer where a minister could be found to marry them, and, of course, the circuit rider got the job."

"The farmer was an interested spectator of the happy affair, and at the conclusion of the solemn words that made the supposed clergymen and wife were benevolently delighted to sign his name as witness to an elaborate marriage certificate which the minister fished up from his little black grip as a present to the bride and groom. In the morning that signature appeared at a bank in the neighboring town and was cashed without question."

"Nearly all the papers in the country printed the incident at the time."

Sleepless Nights

"My wife is of a nervous temperament, and has suffered much from sleeplessness. Since using Dr. Miles' Nervine she has greatly improved and now sleeps well."

W. W. FISHBACK, Redkey, Ind.
When the nerves become weak, worn-out, excitable from overwork, worry, grief or mental exhaustion, their turbulent condition prevents that total relaxation that induces sleep.

Dr. Miles' Nervine by its soothing and quieting influence and by strengthening and replenishing the exhausted nerve force brings profound and restful sleep.

The first bottle will benefit; if not, the druggist will return your money.

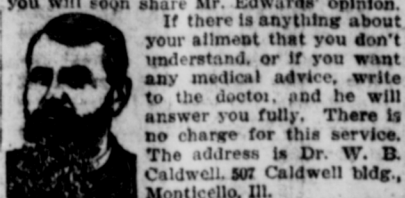

Safeguard of Health Free

The army and the navy are the safeguards of the nation, but the individual body also requires its safeguard. By twenty years' use in American homes of every shade and degree of wealth and intelligence, Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin has been acclaimed "The Nation's Safeguard of Health."

No remedy but a laxative could win this laurel for the stomach and the bowels are the basis of all health, and Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is for the stomach and bowels. Parents are giving it to their children today who were given it by their parents years ago. It is not only a wonderful cure in constipation, indigestion and dyspepsia, sour stomach, heartburn, flatulency, torpid liver and such complaints, but it contains the wonderful tonic properties that build up the muscles of the stomach and intestines so that they again work normally and naturally.

It is especially adapted to the uses of women, children, old people and all others who need a gentle laxative and who cannot stand violent salts and cathartic pills. This has made it the family laxative and the remedy for any ailment of the stomach and bowels. If you are a stranger to it and would like to see for yourself, send your name to the doctor and a free test bottle will be sent to your home. In this way you can see for yourself the wonderful results of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

Louis Edwards, of Potomac, Miss., wrote as follows: "I was afflicted with Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. I will never use any other medicine for stomach troubles. The sample has convinced me of its merit. Now you use it, either in the free trial or the regular bottle. I will send you my autograph, and if you want any medical advice, write to the doctor, and he will answer you fully. There is no charge for this service. The address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 507 Caldwell Bldg., Monticello, Ill."

time, but none of them had the story of how the trick was done. That did not become known until later. The certificate of marriage was printed on heavy cardboard, and wherever the names or dates were to be written in, the cardboard was cut away with a beveled edge and the writing was done on smooth paper pasted on the back of the certificate and showing through the beveled holes. The effect was ornamental and nothing wrong about it could possibly be suspected. Between the two sheets of pasteboard, however, a bank check had been inserted, so that its signature line came right under the opening left for one of the witnesses, and, in consequence, the farmer was actually signing a check on his own bank when he good-naturedly "witnessed" the fake marriage.

Pretty Woman; Autograph Book.

"Of a similar nature was a more elaborate operation performed in Washington. A pretty and extremely vivacious young woman appeared one day with a handsome Morocco-bound and gold-mounted album slung in an alligator carrying case. The outfit was just about the neatest trifle, with the exception of the young lady herself, that ever came to town, and both made a decided impression. She had the autograph mania and wouldn't the dear senator just favor her with his name under her portrait or below the place where she was going to insert his portrait when he gave it to her? In nine cases out of ten the "dear senator" would, no matter what his usual sentiments regarding the autograph hunters. The name was signed through an opening in the card, just as in the marriage certificate, and in every case a check was signed. Not one of these checks was offered for payment until the persuasive young woman had secured all that could be handled in safety, when they were cashed on the same day at the various banks. As the amounts were in no case large, not much stir was made about the matter, and, then senators don't like to tell when the joke is on them."

Bona-fide Signatures Necessary.
"Extraordinary pains are taken by forgers and check workers to secure the bona-fide signatures of wealthy men. Besides letters so worded that they have some chance of reaching past the inconspicuous private secretary and of being answered by the great man himself, every ruse that ingenuity can devise is tried. A successful plan in one case was to present a petition relating to a sewer in the big man's own section, and a score of other names, given in good faith, were secured before the big man was approached. He was caught where there was no pen and ink handy and signed the petition with a hard, blue pencil that was given him, unwittingly signing at the same time a check through the transfer paper beneath. A good pile was secured on this trick."

"As a rule, however, the signature is all that is wanted. If one of the good thing gents can secure a real check written by one of their intended victims it is an occasion for rejoicing, for then all the little peculiarities that distinguishes a check signature from a name signed elsewhere are there to be copied. One successful check worker had a method which could not be discovered for a long time. The signature on the checks he presented were so apparently genuine that even the men on whom the swindles were perpetrated could not swear that they were forgeries except from the fact that they could not remember having signed such checks."

How a Matrix Was Used.
"It was at last discovered that the fellow first secured a signature, had a zinc etching made from it, took a matrix of the zinc engraving, and into this matrix cast a very hard rubber composition, which retained just enough of its elasticity not to show any traces of embossing on the paper receiving the imprint from

it. A metal 'cut' would have shown its impression on the back, but with the composition 'stamp' he was able to produce duplicates of a signature that experts could not tell from the original.

"All these schemes seem to have sprung up to the place of 'clean' forgeries, which are in their decline, and of check raising, which is practically a lost art. So many precautions have been thrown around checks by people who deal largely in them that it is now almost impossible to make, for instance, an $80 check out of an $8 one. Tinted and engraved paper that would show instantly the effects of acids or mechanical erasures began the work that check perpetrators completed, and after a few unsuccessful but ingenious attempts to plug up the holes and re-perforate, the check raiser went out of business, or, rather, turned his peculiar talents in some other direction.

New York Has a Rendezvous.

There are many elaborate schemes such as those mentioned, and it is said there is a large printing and engraving establishment in New York which is devoted entirely to the production of counterfeit check blanks and other printed matter for criminals.

"The genuine 'check worker' is a man who by plausible story and glibness of tongue, contrives to pass a purely worthless check.

"His operations are much more common and the sums involved are usually much smaller, though even in this line there are some 'high rollers' who scorn to 'run a trick' for less than $1,000.

"The ruse is so often successful that it is a wonder merchants do not make an ironclad rule against these deceptive bits of paper. Hotels and saloons seem to be particularly unfortunate in check transactions, though no line of business is free from attack. People who cannot see how others can be taken in on payable and even clumsy frauds forget to take into consideration the effect of personal magnetism, which is a very real factor, whether you call it hypnotism or merely persuasiveness.

Plan of Advertiser.

"A new plan was evolved recently by a fellow who drifted into town and answered the advertisement of every person who had anything to sell. All were invited to call on him at the swell apartments he had rented for the purpose, and he proved a liberal buyer, purchasing everything that was offered to him at almost any price, and paying by check. In a couple of days before the checks had time to come back marked 'N. G.' he left taking with him a cargo of portable property, and leaving behind him scores of people who had paid dearly for the knowledge that it was easy to write checks.

"It is just a good piece of advice to say that it is well to be on your guard for the fellow who wants a check cashed; they are dangerous people to deal with in seven cases out of ten."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

HAREM FOR SALE

SULTAN OF MOROCCO FINDS 200 WIVES ARE EXPENSIVE.

Women Are Fond of Their Master and May Call Strike if Sold to Muley Hafid.

Madrid, Nov. 27.—It is reported from Fez that the Moroccan imperial harem is about to change hands. Abdul Aziz bought the 200 fair Circassians, of which it consists, from a French agent of Tangier. These Circassians are women of great beauty and immense value. But they are correspondingly expensive to keep, and the sultan offered it for sale to his brother, Muley Hafid, several weeks ago. His brother is enormously wealthy, and, as his harem consists of only ten wives, it is believed that a bargain will be struck.

The consideration, it is said, is $100,000, thus placing a value of $500 on each of the wives. If the sale is consummated there is danger of a "strike" among the women of the sultan's harem. The Moroccan ruler has always treated his wives with extreme kindness, and they have grown very fond of him. Perhaps no other harem inmates in the world enjoy such privileges and liberties as those of the sultan's seraglio, and up to the present time none has availed herself of the many opportunities to escape from the country.

It is openly said among them that they will refuse to enter the harem of the sultan's brother, and this threatened mutiny is likely to halt the negotiations, as usually the consent of the damasses is necessary in Morocco before a sale of this kind can be effected.

A Paying Investment.
Mr. John White, of 38 Highland Ave., Houlton, Maine, says: "Have been troubled with a cough every winter and spring. Last winter I tried many advertised remedies, but the cough continued until I bought a 50c bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery; before that was half gone, the cough was all gone. This winter the same happy result has followed: a few doses once more banished the annual cough. I am now convinced that Dr. King's New Discovery is the best of all cough and lung remedies. How to Get Strong.
P. J. Daly, of 1247 W. Congress street, Chicago, tells of a way to become strong: He says: "My mother who is old and was very feeble, is deriving so much benefit from Electric Bitters, that I feel it's my duty to tell those who need a tonic and a strengthening medicine about it. In my mother's case a marked gain in flesh has resulted, insomnia has been overcome, and she is steadily growing stronger." Electric Bitters quickly remedy stomach, liver and kidney complaints. Sold under guarantee at all druggists. 50 cents.

SOOTHING WASH CURES ECZEMA

Oil of Wintergreen Compound Appears to Have Solved a Vexing Medical Problem.

One of the most vexing problems in all medicine appears at last to have been solved by the most simple of all remedies. Ordinary oil of wintergreen, properly compounded with thymol, glycerine and other mild healing liquids, builds up the healthy skin while killing and ultimately removing the eczema germs.

This compound, known as D. D. D. Prescription, has now so thoroughly proven its efficacy that druggists recommend it unhesitatingly. Years of success and thousands of cures have converted even those who seemed convinced that there was "no real cure for eczema."

The sheriff of Franklin Co., Frankfort, Ky., Mr. W. H. Graham, writes: "My 12-year-old daughter had been suffering with an aggravated form of eczema for more than two years. We had her under the care of the best physicians here. Upon getting no relief we were induced to try D. D. D. Prescription."

"She was entirely relieved. It has now been more than one year since she ceased the use of the Remedy, and no sign of the trouble has appeared. I feel very grateful."

Reports indicate that all the cures by D. D. D. Prescription are permanent; and we certainly know that the very first application of this soothing oil of wintergreen compound gives instant relief from the itch.

We recommend washing with D. D. D. Soap to all sufferers from eczema, also all others affected with tender or blotchy skin.

It would hardly seem reasonable to dose the stomach with so-called "blood medicines" when the very first application of an external liquid immediately shows its healing properties.—R. W. Walker Co.

Phonetics.

A certain old farmer's lack of polish is a sad trial to his eldest daughter. Not long ago the family gathered in the library, one of the windows of which was open.

"That air—" the father began, but was quickly interrupted. "Father, dear, don't say 'that air'—say 'that there,'" the daughter admonished.

"Well, this ear—" he again attempted, but was as quickly brought to a halt. "Nor 'this ear.' 'This here' is correct," he was told.

The old gentleman rose with an angry snort. "Look here, Mary," he said, "of course I know you have been to school and all that, but I reckon I know what I want to say and I'm going to say it. I believe I feel cold in this ear from that air, and I'm going to shut the window."—Philadelphia Ledger.

WHAT DID BOOE DO WITH MONEY?

This Question Being Asked in Frankfort by Friends.

Also Wonder Why He Stole State's Funds Under Auditor Hager.

HE WILL CLAIM TO BE INSANE.

Frankfort, Ky., Nov. 27.—Auditor James is going to try in every way possible to prevent the state from losing any money on account of the peculations of Judge Booe. He has asked Attorney General Breathitt to give him an opinion as to whether or not the persons cashing the forged checks are responsible for the money paid to them from the state. Judge Breathitt's off-hand opinion was "I am inclined to think that they are," but he is now looking up the law on the question and will give Auditor James his opinion in writing in a few days. He feels sure if there was any person who cashed a check had any idea that they were fraudulent then they are responsible to the state for the money.

Judge Breathitt says: "It don't look like the state ought to be beat out of the money, through the dishonesty of an official." The state is protected by a bond of $25,000 from Judge Booe to Judge Hager for all except three months of his administration, so that if there is any money to be paid back those who cashed the checks will not be hit hard unless the peculations ran up much higher than is expected. At this time, however, it is impossible to tell what the sum will be. The excitement of the exposures among those employed by the state has now passed off, and with a force of clerks from Auditor James' office Examiner and Inspector Thatcher is busy at work checking up the vouchers.

The most amusing discoveries that have been made so far were those of yesterday when it was found that even after the work of checking up Judge Booe began he continued his peculations. During this month warrants were padded and checks were drawn as late as the 18th inst. Those found for November follow: On the 7th, $216; 11th, $165; 12th, $185; 18th, $120.

It was stated on the street last night that Judge Booe's defense would be insanity, and that a commission would be requested to hold an inquest before the trial. Judge Booe's friends say that no one but an insane man could have carried on such operations, and that they believe that he was driven insane by speculation.

It was also stated last night that the state legal advisers hold that each offense will be made a separate charge, and that if the letter of the law is carried out that Judge Booe could be sent to prison for a thousand years. It was stated authoritatively yesterday by persons who ought to know that even if every penny of the peculations is paid back to the state, Judge Booe will be prosecuted just the same.

What Judge Booe did with the money is the question that everybody is asking. It is said by some of the men who knew him well that he has considerable money invested in Louisville. He is known to own, or to have owned stock in the Louisville Traction company and the Home Telephone company, and perhaps may have had stock in other Louisville corporations. That Judge Booe did not need money for his own uses or for his family and that he had stock which could have been put up to cover any margins on stock that he was carrying, is shown by the fact that he was able to invest money in so many concerns.

He had stock in several Frankfort companies and several in Louisville, so that he could not have had any pressing need for money. He also had a fine farm in Fleming county, which recently was sold for $10,000. It would seem that he did not need money to protect his margin investments and if that was not the reason for his thefts people here say that he must have taken the money simply because he wanted it.

A CHANGE OF TUNE.
 "Mamma, I'm tired of going to school."
 "What's the matter, Willie?"
 "Th' teacher!"
 "Now don't you say a word against your teacher, Willie. I've no doubt you annoy her dreadfully, and she seems like a very nice sort of person."
 "Well, she said this morning that she didn't think I had much of a bringin' up at home, an'—"
 "Wait! Did she say that? Well, of all the coarse impudence! You shan't go back there another day!"
 Exit, Willie grinning.

RESTORATIVE TREATMENT FOR NERVOUS MEN.

Coming from a source of unquestioned authority on the ailments of men it is presumed to be infallible, while the profession generally endorse the ingredients and prescribe them in many different forms of various diseases. The following formula is highly efficient in quickly restoring in nervous exhaustion, melancholia, anxiety, timidity in venturing, dizziness, heart palpitation, trembling limbs, insomnia, thinness, cold extremities, tired-all-in feeling and general inability to do those natural and rational acts upon which depends a man's success and happiness in social and every-day life.

The instructions for mixing at home secretly so that no embarrassment may be felt, are as follows: First get three ounces of syrup sarsaparilla compound and one ounce compound fluid balmwort; mix and let stand two hours. Then add one ounce compound essence cardol and one ounce tincture cadomene (not cardamon) and mix all together. The directions are to take one teaspoonful after each meal and one when retiring, until bounding health and full strength are restored. Even a few weeks will witness most wonderful results.

Astonishing nervous force and equilibrium follow the treatment, no matter how serious the case.

This contains no opiates whatever and may also be used by women who suffer with their nerves with absolute certainty of prompt and lasting benefits.

God Lets Loose a Thinker.

Beware when the great God lets loose a thinker on this planet. Then all things are at risk. It is as when a conflagration has broken out in a great city, and no man knows what is safe or where it will end. There is not a piece of science but its flank may be turned tomorrow; there is not any literary reputation, not the so-called eternal names of fame, that may not be revised and condemned. The very hopes of man, the thoughts of his heart, the religion of nation, the manners and morals of mankind, are all at the mercy of a new generalization. Generalization is always a new influx of the divinity into the mind. Hence the thrill that attends it.—R. W. Emerson.

They Take the Kinks Out.

SOME PREDICTIONS

Yes, said the Reader of the Future, I see great things in store for women. Wait a minute; the control is bad. Yes, there, there—now it's all right again. I see a woman in the presidential chair. She is wearing an enormous hat and great quantities of jewels; men are bowing before her. Wait a minute, I've lost my control. There it is again. I see women voting. Ah, now it comes all at once—the future revealed on a slate. This is what it says:

"In 1950—Women will vote in parts of the United States.

"In 1951—A woman will announce herself for the presidency on the race suicide ticket. She will be opposed by a man, an anti-nature faker.

"In 1952—Desperate political campaign that has lasted since the middle of the previous year is concluded with the election of a woman to the presidency.

"In 1954—National legislation is enacted making it a felony for a man to go upon the streets unescorted by a woman.

"In 1955—Curfew law for men is passed in congress amid scenes of wildest disorder. Two men who voted against the bill are unseated.

"In 1956—Law is passed requiring men to be registered before assuming duties as nurses. Former president re-elected.

"In 1957—Men in great national mass meeting declare for independence; war is declared.

"In 1958—Women, from airships, hurl tons of batpins on men's army, completely annihilating it.

"In 1959—Law passed pensioning all women veterans of recent war.

"In 1960—Nation bankrupt; is annexed to Japan."—Woman's National Daily.

FRENCHMAN WINS BIG AUTO RACE

Wagner Drove Fiat Car 402 Miles at Rate of 65.5.

Time Made By Wagner is a New Record for Road Racing in America.

THE GERMAN CAME IN SECOND

Savannah, Ga., Nov. 27.—The power of six score of horses, crashing and roaring in the cylinders of a Fiat car, sent plunging along 402 miles of roadways by Louis Wagner, won the most spectacular, longest and fastest international automobile race ever held in this country. Fato played a game of hide and seek with three grim and grimy figures that sat behind the wheels and throttles and fought with skill and daring for the advantage of seconds at the finish of more than six hours of racing.

The three drivers who clung together from the very start were shuffled about like so many cards, as the fast-flying laps were reeled away. It was not until the last minute of the last lap that the tide of victory turned to Wagner, Nazarro, the wonderful Italian driver, holder of the world's record and winner of many contests who clung tenaciously to a narrow margin of lead for more than a hundred miles, hesitated long enough at the supply pits to change a weakening tire and lost, going back to third position. Hemery, in the German Benz, No. 8, took second honors.

It was not until official time was announced that the actual winner was known—that Wagner had hurled himself to victory by the slender margin of 56 seconds. Hemery was first to finish and the enthusiastic thousands hailed him as the winner without heed of the six minutes grace Wagner held, Hemery being sent away at the start at 9:52 and Wagner at 9:58.

A French car and his driving then over the Long Island course was a replica of the steady nerve and skill which he displayed so brilliantly in winning the first grand prize of the Automobile Club of America.

Wagner set a new record for road racing in this country. George Robertson, in the Vanderbilt cup race, made 258 miles last month with a mark of 64.3 miles an hour. For the longer distance of 402 miles, Wagner raised it to 65.5. He averaged 23 minutes to each one of the sixteen laps that measured 25.13 miles. His fastest lap was made in 21.50, but the lap honors of the day went to Depaulma at the wheel of a Fiat, No. 18, who twice made the circuit in 21.36, an average of 70 miles an hour.

Employers and stenographers alike have welcomed it as the one machine that answers the multiplied needs of the hour. The cry is for Speed! Speed!—and the Oliver responds.

The demand for Durability is filled by the sturdy, steel-clad Oliver. To a call for a writing machine that will do many things and do each of them equally well, the Oliver answers with its unexampled versatility.

HOW TO GAIN HEALTHY FLESH.

W. B. McPherson Advises Use of Samose.

While thinness may not be a disease, yet it is in reality a condition that needs attention. Under the nourishing powers of Samose healthy natural flesh will soon be attained. This remarkable flesh forming food strengthens the system generally and builds up the fleshy tissues so that good, natural plumpness results.

An ounce of flesh is better than a pound of theory. W. B. McPherson believes that the best possible demonstration of the flesh-forming powers of Samose is to have it tried by his customers, and to induce them to use it, he offers to pay for the Samose in case it does not give satisfaction. No stronger proof than this can be given of his faith in it. He has seen hundreds who were weak, thin and scrawny, become plump, robust and strong, solely through the use of Samose.

If you are thin or in poor health, take advantage of this offer. You run no risk whatever, and the chances are 98 out of 100 that you will notice a gain in weight after using Samose for a week or ten days.

To Connel Publication of Campaign Contributions—Pleased With Action of Parties.

WILL STRIVE FOR A NEW LAW.

New York, Nov. 27.—The executive committee of the National Publicity Law organization met today and adopted the following address concerning the publication of the campaign contributions and expenditures by the treasurers of the two national political parties:

"The movement inaugurated by the National Publicity Law organization at the close of the presidential election of 1904, while not yet successful in securing legislation by congress, has been instrumental in establishing the initial test of publicity of campaign contributions and expenditures in national elections. The Democratic national committee has followed the provisions of the proposed legislation in congress for publication before and after election. The Republican national committee has voluntarily placed itself under the New York statute, which provides that—

"If any person . . . or committee . . . fails to file a statement or account as above required . . . or files a statement which does not conform to the foregoing requirements . . . the supreme court or any justice thereof, may compel by order in proceedings for contempt, such person or committee to file a sufficient statement or account Application for an order, as prescribed herein may be made by the attorney general, district attorney, a candidate voted for at the election in respect to which the allegations in such petition may relate, or by any five qualified voters who voted at such meeting."

"Secrecy of the ballot is based upon the necessity of protecting the voter from the coercion or inducement of improper influences. Campaign fund publicity is required as equally essential and strikes directly at the existence of such influences. This is the fundamental principal for which the National Publicity Law organization and its New York state branch have contended in promoting the enactment of a state law and in compelling the attention of congress to the necessity of federal legislation. At no stage of this movement has there been any open opposition in Washington. Even the controlling powers of the house of representatives, not desiring legislation before the presidential campaign, brought about the passage of a bill containing all the provisions advocated by our organization for publication before and after election, but by arbitrarily attaching a 'force bill' to that measure during the closing days of the last session of congress, rendered it impossible of enactment at that time.

It's when a fellow thinks he is out of sight that he feels all eyes are upon him.

The Clyde will be repaired immediately and will leave next Wednesday evening on her regular trip. Part of the Clyde's trip will be shipped on the Kentucky Saturday evening when she leaves for Riverton, Ala.

The steamer Kentucky arrived this morning from Riverton, Ala., and all way landings with a large freight list. Leaves Paducah for Bar.

The Rev. E. S. Harris, whose resignation from the ministry and membership of the Methodist church was announced during the sessions of the Memphis conference in Covington, has moved from Humboldt, Tenn., to Tulsa, Okla., and has entered the active practice of law.

The Rev. Mr. Harris delivered the address of the graduating class of 1908 of the High school last June, and is well known in the city. He held a revival in Paducah several years ago, and frequently had filled local pulpits.

LAMPHERE HELD GUILTY OF ARSON

Responsible For Burning of Guinness Home.

For Indeterminate Term of From Two to 21 Years—Defense Say Motion for New Trial.

WAS SENTENCED TO PRISON.

Laporte, Ind., Nov. 27.—Ray Lamphere, charged with the murder of Mrs. Belle Guinness and her three children, by setting fire to the Guinness house, April 28, last, was found guilty of arson by the jury which had the case since 5:30 last evening. Within five minutes after the verdict was reported Judge Richter had sentenced the defendant to the state penitentiary at Michigan City for an indeterminate term of from two to 21 years. He will be taken to Michigan City tomorrow to begin his sentence.

The court room was packed with people when the jury filed in. Lamphere had, in the meantime, been brought from the jail and was carefully guarded by a detail of bailiffs. The foreman of the jury read the verdict, but there was no demonstration. Previous to the reading of the verdict Lamphere stated that he wished to make a statement, but the judge refused to hear it.

After the verdict had been read Judge Richter asked Lamphere if he cared to make a statement, but he said that it would do no good now. He also declined to give any reason why sentence should not be passed. Judge Richter then sentenced him to the state prison in Michigan City for an indeterminate term of from two to 21 years, fined him $5,000 and disfranchised him for five years. Lamphere was then returned to jail.

The attorneys for the defense stated that a motion for a new trial would be made and if refused an appeal would be taken to the supreme court.

Lamphere in a statement said that he was confident that the dead body in the fire was Mrs. Guinness, regardless of what other people may think. He reiterated his innocence of setting fire to the house.

All the members of the jury issued a signed statement in which they declared it was their "judgment in consideration of this case that the adult body found in the ruins of the fire was that of Belle Guinness, and that the case was decided by us on an entirely different proposition."

It is stated that ten jurors favored life sentence; also that one of the jurors said that they would have found him guilty of manslaughter had they remembered that the sentence for that was the same as for arson.
